WE NOMINATE

Martin Luther Beck and Kenneth Stone Kassler, Princeton-based and Princeton-trained architects, who have brought unusual recognition to this community with their recent election as Fellows of the American Institute of Architects, honors tantamount to receiving honorary "honorary degrees" in one's own profession. Marking the first time in nearly 20 years that New Jersey architects have been accorded this signal distinction, the 59-year old Beck and the 55-year old Kassler rank among the State's architectural trail-blazers—the former in the fields of higher education and planning and the latter in the "science of construction."

In the careers of these two able Princetonians there is a similar, and refreshing, degree of affinity in that both feel strongly about public service and translate their convictions into positive action. Both have taught, have given freely of their time to educational institutions and have been willing to invest long hours in the work of public appointive bodies. Kassler, a former chairman of the Borough "Zoning Board," is a member of the Township's Committee on Multiple Housing, while Beck is the newly-elected chairman of the Borough's Planning Board and is on the threshold of a six-year term with that board.

The ever-changing Princeton scene is dotted with illustrations of their practice of the highly specialized "trade" of architecture. Beck, Hungarian-born and a member of the University Faculty for nearly two decades, is represented by this area's second most-visited building (Nassau Hall being the first), the celebrated Walker-Gordon Rotolactor, and the University's Cosmic Ray Laboratory. Among Kassler's contributions are his own West Lafayette Road residence, the combined YM-YW (a joint venture with Sherley W. Morgan), PMI's new (1957) Nassau Street office building and the Applied Science Corporation Laboratories.

Beck, a member of the New Jersey Board of Architects since 1957, is presently in charge of the stupendous building program envisioned by Rutgers University, including the strikingly visible, high-rise dormitories along the banks of the Raritan River. This far-reaching responsibility embraces the State University's development plan in Newark, the Newark Law Center, and the mushrooming facilities for the School of Agriculture. Linked with this "evolutionary process" are Beck's previous associations with firms handling the planning for the University of Mexico and Highlands University.

A native of Denver, Colo., and a registered architect in New York, Pennsylvania and Maine as well as in New Jersey, Kassler—in the opinion of one associate—has experimented boldly and wisely with "new building and design techniques." He has used thin-shell concrete in the shape of a cone as an economical roof-form, notably in his own home; multiple light control panels; "stressed skin and curtain-wall construction" on lightweight steel frames, thereby reducing the weight of wood stud-and-joist buildings; and modular furniture and storage units contributing to the adaptability of modern homes.

For meriting the honors that are being conferred upon them by their fellow architects; for adding still another dimension to Princeton's tradition as a center of education and research; for distinguished service to their profession—and in their community; these two men are Town Topics' nominees for

As Winter Retires Grudgingly. The coldest two weeks of March, the eastern seaboard has known in U. S. Weather Bureau history are now a matter of record. For the immediate future, the news was even better: Spring, set to arrive Sunday morning at 9:43, will make its presence felt even before that time with temperatures that will move well up into the 50's, accompanied by warm, snow-melting sunshine.

The third month of 1960 has already produced a series of developments that have intrigued meteorologists, frustrated various segments of the population ranging from sun-worshippers to Green Thumbs, and sent winter sports fans skating (picture, page 3), skiing and tobogganing over New Jersey countryside that is normally showing numerous signs of spring. Statistically, it was unlikely to be duplicated for many a year to come.

For example:
• The average temperature for the first 14 days of March was 24.2—14 degrees below normal for the period. Nothing like that has occurred in more than three-quarters of a century of Weather Bureau record-keeping.
• James E. Breth (picture above), who has been "commuting" between Greenlawn and Princeton, reports that the two, Princeton has had more snow this month.
• From March 1 to March 13, the thermometer never produced an official reading above freezing. It dropped to ten last Wednesday.

What Happened? Weather expert David M. Ludlum, whose Princeton-based Science Associates makes a business of studying hourly developments in this field, told Town Topics that "a prolonged flow of cold air from northwestern Canada had no opposition in finding its way to the Atlantic seaboard for a good two weeks. The normal storm track and the jet stream were much further south than normal." Mr. Ludlum said: "As a result, the cold air from Canada and Alaska flowed steadily in a southeasterly direction, completely dominating the weather picture in New Jersey."

As far as the March 3 blizzard was concerned, Mr. Ludlum reports that "Princeton got off a lot easier than much of the rest of New Jersey. We had about eight or nine inches here," he said, "while communities no more than 35 or 40 miles north of us got almost two feet." The Catskill Mountain area in southern New York State experienced a 41-inch flat that day, giving it an accumulation of six feet.

Before winter came to an official end on Sunday, there was a good chance of snow or cold rain on Thursday. A pair of low pressure centers, one that had added more snow to the frozen Plain States, and another moving up the Atlantic seaboard from Georgia and the Carolinas, could possibly converge here. Precipitation would follow—but nothing compared to the big snow of March 3.

"The cold wave," Mr. Ludlum said, "is about over. A warm mass of air from the Pacific will dominate our weather for the next few days, making its presence felt slowly but steadily.
"By the weekend, it will be considerably warmer than it has been so far this month. Spring," he said—and the forecast was the most welcome in months—"will arrive on schedule."

SITES PIN-POINTED

For Public Housing. Meeting in special session on Saturday afternoon, Borough Council unanimously adopted—with one member expressing reservations—a resolution proposing alternative sites for public housing should the plan to build units in the Township fail to materialize.

According to the new resolution, amended from the original resolution introduced by Councilman Dan D. Coyle, the proposed sites are: 1418 Witherspoon Lane, 32-34 Witherspoon Lane, the lot south of the eastern end of Spruce Street, and the lot of the southwest corner of Franklin and Harrison Street North.

There would also be seven geriatric units on the northeast corner of Witherspoon Street and Witherspoon Lane. These would be for both elderly couples and single elderly persons.

Council had not included the Borough property on the western side of Elm Road, just south of Mountain Avenue on the old Borough sewer field. It was because of an objection from Mr. Lester that Mr. Coyle had withdrawn his original resolution and asked for a special Council meeting to consider amendments.

Mr. Lester had objected to the fact that all the original sites were in the Witherspoon-John area. The Public House Administration must have alternative Borough sites on file in case the Township River Road sites are not available.

A general alarm early Monday afternoon was sounded when a Public Service "drip truck" caught fire on Nassau Street, between Chestnut and Pine. The truck, used to siphon off liquid residues that collect in gas lines, broke into flames under the hood when the engine overheated, damaging the motor and the cab extensively. . . another blaze Sunday night at 10:30 started from grease in a ventilator duct leading from the kitchen of the Quadrangle Club on Prospect Avenue. . . police extinguished the small fire without trouble.

A snookhead who gained entrance by breaking a pane of glass in the front door entered the home of Mrs. Jane C. Taylor, 60 Harrison Street, during a purse that contained $4. . . Driscoll to map a "comprehensive civil defense plan" for the state in the event of enemy attack by air. . . and in March, 1960, civil defense officials, still aware of the lack of international understanding, have scheduled a state-wide alert involving public participation for March 28 (see box, page 22).

Activity in the building field was running well ahead of the first three months of 1960, with another major project scheduled for the spring when ground was to be broken for the University's Woodrow Wilson Hall on Washington Road. . . Frederick A. Millholland appeared before Borough Council to express the appreciation of 60 Mercer Street residents who had asked for, and benefited from, an anti-speeding campaign. . . The Playhouse was featuring Humphrey Bogart in "Chain Lightning," while Fred Macfayr and Claire Trevor were on view at the Garden in "Borderline."

In sports, Howie Stepp's star breaststroke artist Bob Branner, set a world's record of 2:13.4 for the 200-yard distance, and the Han School, PHS alumnus Tom Cashill broke the basketball scoring record with 33 points against Solebury. . . Princeton High, knocked out of the Central Jersey Group III tournament by Bound Brook's last-second basket, elected Bill Hogarty captain for the season just ended. . . TOWN TOPICS' Man of the Week was Robert K. ADENAUER HONORED

In Chapel Convocation Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree from Princeton University by President Robert E. Goheen Monday night in a special chapel convocation. It was the 17th honorary degree for the 84-year old statesman. (Picture, page 11.)

The convocation, the first to honor an individual since 1914, was held before an overflow crowd of more than 3,000. The ceremony opened a series of lectures and discussions at the University entitled "Germany: Problems and Prospects."

Speaking in German, the Chancellor reaffirmed that free Germany's "policy and security are unthinkable without this basic principle of our friendship with America." He also cited the Berlin problem as the "restoration of the right of self-determination for 16 million Germans in the Soviet zone of occupation."

He stated that efforts should be devoted above all to the question of controlled disarmament for nuclear as well as conventional weapons, and also warned of the propaganda and promises of the Soviet Union. At the end of his speech, Dr. Adenauer was given a prolonged ovation by the crowd, which filled the aisles and was seated on the balcony steps.

The citation of the degree was read by Dr. Fordyce B. St. John, Charter Trustee Emeritus and University Orator, as Dr. Adenauer stood quietly before President Goheen. It opened with the word "Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany; he has spent a lifetime combating the corrosive effects of nationalism and war. . ."

FULL SLATES FILED

For April Primaries, both parties produced candidates last week for the vacancies that will occur on Borough Council and Township Committee in November. There will be no contests in the April 19 primaries.

The four nominees for two Borough Council seats, to be vacated by Councilmen Richard D. Colman and Richard A. Lester, are:

Albert A. Austen (R), 10 Princeton Avenue, Assistant Professor in the Department of English at Rutgers University.

Dr. Ellwood W. Godfrey (R), 12 Hunter Road, Director of the X-ray Department of Princeton Hospital.

Robert W. Van de Velde, (D), 222 Western Way, faculty member at Princeton University.

Gordon T. Waldron (D), 22 Wilson Road, proprietor of Soup to Nuts, Spring Street Restaurant.

Township Committee candidates:

R. Kenneth Fairman (R), Rosedale Lane, Director of Athletics at Princeton University and currently Township Mayor.

Maurice F. Healy Jr. (R), 1108 Princeton-Kingston Road, executive at Personal Products, New Brunswick.

Richard T. Frost, 30 Wheat-sheaf Lane, faculty member at Princeton University.

Simeon F. Moss, (D), 433 Walnut Lane, a teacher at the Witherspoon School, Quarry Street.

Robson Unopposed. Stuart Robson (R), 29 Rollingmead, a teacher at Princeton Country Day School, will run for re-election as tax assessor in Princeton Township without opposition.

Democrats in that municipality said that they have made no nomination because they believe "that this position is one calling for special training and high technical competence, and has no place in party contests." Urging that the position be removed from the ballot by giving it Civil Service status, they will in the meantime agree that Mr. Robson should continue as assessor.

PLANS NEW DEVELOPMENT

In Howe Tract, Preliminary plans for a new development of 40 homes to be built in the Howe tract by the P-Y Construction Company were laid before the Township Planning Board Monday night. The houses would be built on land bounded by Riverside Drive, Prospect Avenue, Woodside Lane and the rear of properties on Howe Circle.

Several property owners in the vicinity appeared at Monday night's hearing to express their feelings about the amount of traffic that already goes along Woodside Lane and Riverside Drive en route to the new Riverside School.

Because of these objections, P-Y was asked to realign the two streets in its development—Ronnie Circle and Philip Drive—so that they would bisect the development and connect Riverside and Prospect.

The problems and disputes between Princeton Construction Company and residents of the Adams Drive area were apparently settled Monday night when the Planning Board accepted Princeton Construction's plans to move Vernon Circle about 90 feet south of the rear property lines of Adams Drive residents. Harold E. Switzgabel Jr., of Adams Drive, produced an alternative plan which would have put Vernon Circle along a filed-in gully to the south, but the Board rejected this plan. Six houses will be built in this area.

ENGINEER NAMED

In Township, James E. Breth, 282 Western Way, has been appointed Township Engineer, effective March 14. He succeeds Calvin O. Schofield, who resigned March 1.

A native of Cresson, Pa., Mr. Breth has made his home in Princeton for the past four years. For two of those years—1958 to 1960—he has been a commuter to Sondrestrom, Greenland.

SCUFFLE WITH PICKETS

In Segregation Protest, University undergraduates picketing Woolworth's in protest against southern lunch-counter segregation practiced by the chain of stores in a brief scuffle with a group of high-school students, joined by a few other undergraduates.

Borough police and University proctors restored order. There were no arrests and no injuries, and the picketing continued after the melee had been broken up.

According to police, the trouble began when undergraduates from Colonial Club, an eating club with many southern members, joined a few Princeton high school students and began to throw snowballs at the pickets. Undergraduates have denied that the snowballers were largely members of Colonial.

Picketing began at 1 p.m. Over 40 pickets carrying signs reading, "I found million-dollar bigotry in a five-and-ten-cent store," and so on, marched in front of the store until 5 p.m. R. Hunter Morley, member of the class of 1962 at Princeton, had proposed the picketing in a letter to the Daily Princetonian, saying, "The Woolworth policy of segregated lunch counters is totally counter to the spirit of racial equality and human dignity on which the United States tries to pride itself."

The Princeton Woolworth's manager, B. L. Wampler, issued a statement in which he said, "Woolworth's is not at fault here. Some of my best customers are Negroes. What stores do down south is no reflection on the company."

Both white and Negro students crowded Saturday's picket line. Between 200 and 300 students and townspeople watched the demonstration and at one point, a guitarist and a bongo drummer beat out a rhythm for the marchers.

Students who took part in the picketing said they had sent a

CASE DISMISSED

For Lack of Evidence, Ten men and women arrested at 26 Lytle Street and accused of gambling, were freed in Borough Court Monday night by Magistrate Theodore Tams because of insufficient evidence. The eleventh defendant, Jean Stewart of Trenton, was unable to be present Monday and her hearing was adjourned.

Borough police under Sgt. Robert J. Anderson raided the premises at 26 Lytle on March 6 after an anonymous phone call from a neighbor. They found a marked deck of cards, but no chips or money, and they were unable to prove ownership of the cards or to prove that any of the persons arrested knew that the deck was marked.

Police said that four of the defendants had previous gambling convictions. They are Stanford Bingham, 36, 21 Jackson Street; Percy Randall, 30, 15 Shirley Court; John Richardson, 31, 67 Lincoln Avenue, and Willy Baker, 40, 117 Liberty Street, Hightstown.

The others are Henry Owens, 46, 14 Quarry Street; Albert Parks, 40, 37 Clay Street; Samuel Johnston, 41, who leases the property at 26 Lytle but who was not present when the arrests were made; John Jackson, 31, 824 Hoffman Avenue, Trenton; Thomas Crawford, 56, 61 Race Street and

News Of The THEATRES

(The following review of "A Servant of Two Masters" as presented by Piccolo Teatro di Milano was written for Town Topics by Mrs. Peter G. Cook, among whose accomplishments are a knowledge of Italian and an abiding interest in the traditions of Italy.)

DELIGHTFUL COMEDY

By Touring Italian Company, "The Servant of Two Masters," by Carlo Goldoni was presented last Thursday in McCarter Theatre by the Piccolo Teatro di Milano, an Italian company founded after World War II for the presentation of entertainment in the tradition of the Commedia dell'Arte. One of the Piccolo's most successful productions, already given widely in Europe, Africa North and South America, has been this 18th century classic which Goldoni, himself, described as "playful comedy" because of the playful antics of the Harlequin.

The original "Arlecchino" was Goldoni's friend, a famous Venetian actor who gave him the title and the "argomento". The character was stereotype, the plot full of the not unusual intricacies of intrigue, confusion and mistaken identity, but the improvisation of the actors was the keynote to its transformation into real comedy.

The 20th century production of "The Servant of Two Masters" is a masterpiece of ingenuity, and humor which appears to be timeless. Though given entirely in Italian, the use of pantomime, pace, gesture and plain old-fashioned acting makes the story easy to follow even without understanding the spoken words. In spite of the constant drill and training which the troupe must undergo to achieve perfection of performance, the effect is of an ebullient, spontaneous melody of all the best in theatre.

The McCarter stage was transformed into Venice by the simplest means: a 18' x 18' platform with a curtain or two, painted in mellow tones and hung in the back; a decaying, moss-niched pair of arches; three billows of transparent netting as sky, all set in front of a pale blue backdrop. Not the least of the charm of this setting was the informality with which the actors and "spectators" were seen making their entrances and exits, since the acting area was only a small part of the visible stage.

High-Style Buffoonery. The play depends for its success chiefly on style and pace. Every gesture, every movement and intonation is part of a fast-moving, elegant pattern.

The role of "Arlecchino" as the servant of two masters is particularly exacting and was played by Marcello Moretti, certainly the greatest traditional Harlequin living today, an artist of rare understanding and poignant interpretation. To watch him balance a soup tureen and a fruit dish in the midst of what seems a disastrous pratfall, to see him "catch a fly and eat it," to follow him on all fours in search of a letter which has stuck to his posterior is to enjoy the full scale of comic acting. And when called upon to serve two dinners at once to two unsuspecting masters, calling out orders from the wings and two footmen handing him various edibles, it becomes triumph of timing, juggling, acrobatics, mimicry, rapid-fire repartee such as one sees once in a lifetime.

With no exception, the supporting characters are also drawn with a consummate skill and exquisite humor that treats the audience to a series of vivid vignettes through which dance the eyes and feet of a delicious and irresistible handmaiden; the frustrated attempts of "Clarice" to wind up to the big cry; the big faint, the anguished cries; "Pestiche" punctuating the lover's torrent of words; bloodless duels, a "barbershop trio," a chorus—not kicking but tip-toeing off stage in unison.

To this vibrant group of actors and musicians and their corps of experts who implement the show on a road which is continually foreign and unfamiliar, their Princeton audience can be warmly appreciative for an unforgettable evening of wholehearted gaiety. "Smeraldina" admitted to us that she loves to play comedy for after that, one can do anything. We know that the Piccolo can.

(The following review of "Le Misanthrope" as presented by Le Theatre du Vieux Colombier was written for Town Topics by Prof. Armand Hogg, a member of the Department of Romance Languages at Princeton University.)

MOLIERE ENJOYED

By Sellout McCarter Audience. A great many French-speaking Princetonians filled McCarter Theatre Friday when the curtain rose on Moliere's "Misanthrope". It was the second time in three years that this famous 17th century classic was presented here by a French cast. After the Jean-Louis Barrault - Madeleine Renaud company, the Theatre du Vieux Colombier performed under the Romance Language Department of the University. Its rendering of the Moliere play met with the same enthusiastic response.

ponse as was given three years ago.

It might be said that masterpiece never wear out, that one can listen to them over and over again, with the same pleasure. But the true reason for Le Misanthrope's popularity is perhaps a little different. In that play can be found not only a brilliant example of Moliere's sarcasm and humanity, but something else, a true French myth of love.

The play, as Moliere wrote it, almost three centuries ago, seems itself about the misanthrope Alceste, who is revolted by the social hypocrisy of the day. "Alceste, Alceste, le vous prie" ("Please leave me alone") is his outworn motto.

One can very well imagine how such a man could find cause to grumble all day long in the time of Versailles: never was Paris society as sophisticated as under the reign of Louis XIVth. There were actually, around 1660, a few misanthropists in France, but they resided in their country estates, far from Paris and the court of Versailles.

The trouble with Alceste is that he is a misanthrope and in some times loves a brilliant society lady, Celine, whom he would like to marry. He will not, of course, succeed in persuading the frivolous, charming, faithless, flirtatious woman to abandon her life and go away to the country with him. Alceste will leave Paris and retire somewhere in a "desert," but he will do so alone, and the play ends on his rather tragical and already romantic decision.

This is the plot that Moliere wrote. This is the play which was given for the first time on June 1, 1666. (And we have good reasons to suspect that Moliere looked to his own wife Armande as a model for the coquette Celine's character).

But with the centuries, Le Misanthrope has evolved into something more, and different. Alceste and Celine are no longer simply Moliere characters. They have become myths. The myth of impossible sincerity, the myth of the eternal coquette. This is especially true of the latter. As the actress and critic Dussane put it, Celine came to be, after having been impersonated by the extraordinary Cecile Sorel, a feminine counterpart of Louis XIV, the royal incarnation of woman, the Sun-Queen.

For all these reasons, I must confess that I was somewhat disturbed by the contemporary costumes chosen by the Vieux-Comedians. According to Director Bernard Dierman, the essential selves of the characters would be revealed by stripping their wigs from them. I am not so sure.

Though Jacques Dumesnil, Madeleine Delavaire, Jacques Francois and Jean-Pierre Delage gave a superb demonstration of their talents, though the play in its contemporary "mise en scene" was extremely alive and amusing, one could regret perhaps that it is symbolic value has somehow disappeared. By losing its outdated costumes, its ribbons, laces, plumed hats and almost mythological ornaments, Le Misanthrope has become a 20th century Farisian "boulevard" play.

Many like it better that way and thought Moliere's intentions to write about his own contemporaries were rediscovered and restored. They certainly were. We had Moliere "an naturel," and the restoration was striking. But these people in love with the myth of Celine will perhaps not be quite persuaded.

Fortunately, one could always close your eyes and listen to those four remarkable actors I have named. The words were there beautifully delivered, and the comical power, and the sadness, and the mythical echo.

"DON JUAN" REWARDS

Chapel Production Given. Bernard Shaw would probably be delighted with the Chapel Deacons' production of "Don Juan in Hell." The idea of playing out Shaw's irreverencies about the merits of heaven and the meretriciousness of hell before the crucifix and altar of a Christian church is delicious.

The production arranged to bring Mr. Shaw's words to life is really a very good one. The undergraduate producers have chosen to mount this portion of "Man and Superman" in costume. They use Mozart's music to good effect and they achieve some nice things with the lighting at their disposal.

After the audience has settled into the chairs and stalls (and there have been overflow crowds spilling out into the main chapel), all the lights go out and the solemn D minor chord that opens the Mozart "Don Giovanni" overture echoes through the choir. The audience sits in total darkness listening to Mozart, and when the "curtain" is lifted, we see Don Juan.

The actors in this production represent a wide range of experience. Of the four, Michael Pulman as the Don and Emery Batis as the Statue, are by far the best. Mr. Pulman, a member of the class of 1960, is fiery and articulate, although his deliveries are marred by an expiring habit of taking a short gasp of breath after each sentence. He projects Shaw's words and thoughts admirably.

Mr. Batis, one of two cast members who are past the undergraduate stage, is a heavy Statue; brusque, military and roughish. He is, perhaps, the most professional of the entire quartet. E. Robinson Swigart is less effective as the Devil, exhibiting more pettiness than one usually associates with the role. Stanislaw Oppenheim seems miscast as the aristocratic conservative, Dona Ana.

The director, Montgomery Davis, 60, is faced with the problem of keeping things moving throughout a talky play. The device of a lecture is probably the best way to solve this problem, but the Deacons have decided against that.

"Salute" set between the stalls of a choir is essentially a theater-in-the-round — a squared circle, so to speak. The actors must throw their lines to each of the two sides, and unfortunately, this doesn't always happen in "Don Juan." The Don has a long speech which he delivers, sitting down, with his back to half his audience. Most of the time, of course, this doesn't happen and the audience is so close to the players anyhow, that it hardly matters when it does occur.

Another problem facing Mr. Davis has been the problem of the silent listener. What, if you aren't using a lecture, should you have poor Dona Ana do during all those interminable male speeches? Mrs. Oppenheim tries to look interested, but Mr. Davis might have given her a little something to do — say, a fan to flutter.

These are small points, however. The production, which will be given again in Chapel this Saturday, is great fun to watch and to hear. Shaw's lines, spoken with the youthful exuberance of the undergraduate, sound immediate and fresh. The Deacons deserve applause.

IT'S NEW To Us

BEYOND "Y"!

New Sub-Teen Shop, Allen's, which has devoted itself with touching single-mindedness over the years to the toddler-to-size-14, has now enlarged its scope to include the most difficult of all sizes—the sub-teen.

These girls, who used to be the orphans of the fashion world, now have a pretty nice little family.
Clothes are designed especially for their exasperating figure problems and, what is even more to the point, the clothes have flair.

For example: Arnel and cotton combine in a collection of separate featuring slacks, shirts, Bermudas, permanently pleated skirt and rib-length over-blouse. The color is lively; the decoration is a jaunty sport car tattooed on left shoulder and on the leg of the Bermuda.

Shirts and skirts in Madras are cut with the same distinction as an adult. Madras: A shirtwaist dress has just as much flair as it would if it were an adult size 12.
Look at a while, permanently pleated skirt in arnel and ask yourself whether anything could be more sophisticated.

Or, if you're the baby doll type,
why not buy a pink or blue romper playout for tennis? It's sleeveless. Bathing suits are latex, orlon knit or cotton, done in severe tank style for serious swimmers, or with a frilly skirt for girls whose minds are elsewhere.

In the dress department, there is an olive green with heraldic designs and black rick-rack trim around hem, short sleeve and scoop neck. And a shirtwaist made in a patchwork of plaid squares. And a party dress of white nylon organdy over pale blue with a white bow flowing from a wide organdy collar.

Sub-teen underwear is perhaps the most important thing in this new department at Allen's. There are "first" bras, slips, bouffants and special nylon hosiery designed for young girls who sometimes have thin legs. Accessories, too: flower headbands for the hatless 15-year-old, flowered bathing cape and lots of charm bracelets.

Chippendale and Lowestoft.
Fine antiques from the shops of dealers who are known throughout the east will be shown and offered for sale at the Wellesley to be held next Tuesday, Wednes-

The show will open at 11 a.m.
every day and will close at 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday and at 6 p.m. on Thursday. Luncheon and tea will be served daily.

The gymnasium at the school will be filled with booths set up by the dealers who are participating. In some cases, room arrangements will be assembled to

Have A Coke

There are plenty of attractive sub-teen clothes in the new department at Allen's to lure anyone they will fit, but just to make sure, Allen's has bait: free cokes. Temporarily, of course.

The new sub-teen "Haven" has been carved out of the right rear corner of the shop, fenced in with sprightly blue lattice-work and designed to be completely "on its own."

Sub-teens who browse among the shirts and pedal-pushers, swinging cokes, will find that they are screened with privacy in dressing rooms all their own, space to wander about, a feeling of pleasant seclusion.
Better stop in soon while the cokes are still there!

Mrs. Elinor Gordon, well-known to collectors and to people who would like to be collectors, but who content themselves with "Antiques" magazine, Sutton's Antiques in Basking Ridge, will show an unusual one-of-a-kind dough-box and a Pennsylvania cherry chest with random drawers.

Proceeds from the show (admission is $1) will be used for the May Margaret Fine scholarship sponsored by the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey, and to support increases in faculty salaries.

Rowlands Antiques, from Buckingham, Pennsylvania, will exhibit a particularly beautiful pair of Sandwich glass candlesticks, several charming 18th century needlework pictures and a Lowestoft tureen in the form of a setting hen.

On the stage of the gym there will be a room setting arranged by the Princeton Decorating Shop to display a mahogany grandfather's clock made in Philadelphia about 1785, a small walnut candle-table from about the same period, a Chippendale loveseat with shaped back and curved trim and a pair of silver torches from Austria.

Admission to the Show will be $1. The Wellesley Club believes that this is the first antiques show and sale in Princeton in about five years. It is most definitely not a "white elephant" sale; the pieces are first-rate and their antiquity undoubted.

SPANISH FILM HERE

To Be Shown in Mc-Carter, "The Young and the Damned," a Spanish film which won an award for direction at a recent Cannes Film Festival, will be shown in Mc-Carter Theater next Wednesday at 8 under the auspices of the Classic Film Club of Princeton University.

The film, directed by Louis Bunuel, is in Spanish with English sub-titles. Admission to the McCarter showing, for non-members of the club, is 50 cents.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Solomon and Sheba (March 16-22) is the only picture of the year in which God speaks to Yul Brynner. Aside from this, it has little to recommend it other than the heroic proportions of Gina Lollobrigida and a cast of more people than we ever want to see again at one time. Among them are George Sanders and Maria Pavlova.

The Queen of Sheba (Miss Lollobrigida), who has conspired with Thorough to trick Solomon (Brynner), makes a daring attempt to win Solomon's favor, boasting of her faith and flaunting her CinemaScope charms. Contrary to plan, she finds herself falling in love with the bewigged King and is converted to Jehovah. After this it's just one round of adventure: orgies, battles, stonings, tucks, deaths, lulls.

Miss Lollobrigida and Brynner are too competent to let the picture turn into a complete debacle, but the flamboyant direction by King Vidor (no kin to Solomon) and the masses of extra, and tough obstacles to overcome. The film does, however, have one value: it gives you a pretty good idea. Naturally it is in Technicolor.

THE GARDEN

Street of Shame (March 16-19) is an interesting and perceptive social commentary — almost a documentary — on the life of the Japanese prostitute. The film, released in Japan a year ago but more recently in this country, is credited with playing a part in that country's recent abolition of legal prostitution. Machiko Kyo, who appeared in "Ranohomori" and "Gate of Hell" and is now Japan's leading actress, is the star and the late Kenji Mizoguchi, who directed "Ugetsu," was the director.

The story occurs in the Yoshiwara red-light district in Tokyo, where four girls, including Miss Kyo, are the attractions of an establishment known as Dream-land. The girls, who belie any romantic conceptions of the high life enjoyed by ladies of the evening, are grindingly poor and miserable, rarely earning enough money to retire the debts which tie them to the business. Their half-hearted attempts to quit, the naive posings of new arrivals who don't know what's in store for them and the general degradation and unhappiness of the situation are chronicled with stark and thought-provoking realism. Though some of the scenes are necessarily vivid and straightforward, "Street of Shame" is about the worst advertisement the disoluble life could have. Recommended.

Call Me Madam (March 21), a 1952 release in Technicolor, is the screen adaptation of the successful Irving Berlin musical, and it stars Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, Vera-Ellen, George Sanders, Walter Slezacek and Billy de Wolfe. Sol C. Siegel was the producer and Walter Lang directed.

The plot, a thinly fictionalized account of Perle Mesta's exploits as U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg (it's called Lichtenstein in the film), is a bright, well-paced blend of matronly romance and cocktail party foreign affairs. Our enthusiasm for Miss Merman generally knows bounds, but there's no denying she makes a charmingly effusive "Hostess with the Mostes" on the Ball. The songs include "It's a Lovely Day Today," "The Best Thing for You Would Be Me" and "You're Just in Love." Recommended.

No Escape (March 22-26), a sordid little number in French with English titles, stars Raf Vallone, Magali Noel, Charles Vanel and Betty Schneider. Charles Brabant directed.

In an old refinery town, Vanel is a boarding-house landlord who has designs on Miss Noel, the attractive widow of his dead son. She, however, is bored to death with the house and with him, and the maid (Miss Schneider) adds a foreboding touch by openly hating everyone and everything. In this Gallic fairytale comes Vallone, an escaped criminal traveling incognito. He and Miss Noel immediately start an affair which is promptly reported to Vanel by Miss Schneider, who has learned Vallone's true identity. To protect her lover, Miss Noel agrees to romance with Vanel, and meanwhile plots to escape with Vallone by convincing Vanel she and Vallone are dead. If you've followed the plot so far, you probably enjoy the film. As in many foreign dramas, the acting is unrelentingly serious and intense.

FIRES TAKE TWO LIVES

In Monmouth Junction, Two Monmouth Junction residents, who lived half a mile apart, died within two days of each other, when fires broke out in their homes.

Mrs. Catherine Markowicz, 69, left her burning home on Sand Hill Road Sunday, but returned to obtain insurance policies and other papers, and was trapped by the flames. Her son, Joseph Markowicz, was admitted to Middlesex General Hospital, New Brunswick, with severe burns. Charles Weber, fire department foreman, suffered bad burns on his hands. The house was destroyed.

Early Tuesday morning, a fire started in the home of Adam L. Bardowski on New Road. Firemen carried the 52-year-old man from the house, but their efforts to revive him failed. Police attributed his death to suffocation. A burning cigarette which ignited the living room couch was the apparent cause of the fire.

NIXON OVER KENNEDY: Carl Pope goes along with most other Princeton area residents in picking Nixon over Kennedy if these two were to oppose each other in November. For him and the choice of others in this advance Presidential derby, see below. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: Senator Kennedy has scored what appears to be a personal triumph in the New Hampshire Primary. If he and Vice-President Nixon were to vie for the presidency in November, which one would you vote for and why?

Where asked: At the Post Office.

Mrs. William McCormack, 41 Battle Road, housewife: I'd vote for Vice-President Nixon. He is probably one of the first vice-presidents we have ever had who has been thoroughly trained to be president. To me, he is a statesman and not just a politician. I have nothing against Kennedy but I feel Nixon is the better qualified person.

Dr. Harmon Ashley, 10 Bayard Lane, physician, Nixon, Basically I am a Republican and I think Nixon would be more likely to keep this country away from the danger of inflation, to see that we are provided with an adequate defense, to solve the farm mess.

Mrs. Franklin Steele, 103 Patton Avenue, housewife: I would vote for Nixon because of the party. I don't agree with Democratic policies—the are much too federal minded—but I must say I do like Kennedy.

Mrs. Willard Hunt, Pen Lyle Road, Princeton Junction, housewife: I think I would vote for Nixon. He has gained a lot of valuable international experience under Eisenhower which will enable him to deal with the Russians. I believe he has done a good job and worked hard as vice-president.

Beau Lackey, student at Westminster Choir College: I think Nixon would be my choice. I feel Nixon has had a lot more political experience for one thing. And I would say he is more educated in world affairs than Kennedy is.

Mrs. Edward Friedman, 70 Heather Lane, housewife: I would vote for Kennedy because he is the better of your two bad, hypothetical choices.

Carl Pope, 415A Devereux, assistant director of the Bureau of Student Aid, Princeton University: Nixon. Even though he is not what I would call an executive, Nixon has more of this ability than Kennedy. Both, in my mind, would be equal as legislators and that is what I would commonly consider them, but Nixon has the edge in executive ability which the White House demands.

Mrs. David Jones, Great Road, housewife: I'm a Republican and I work for the Republican party in New York City as a district captain so naturally I'd be in favor of Nixon. I think Kennedy is a very interesting candidate, however.

Donald Tumasi, 6 Southern Way, P. M. L. maintenance man: I'd vote for Kennedy. He has a good record, he's been on many committees and he seems to be things done. He has done well in everything he's attempted.

Harvey K. Fish, 9 S. Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell, master sergeant, U. S. Army: I'd vote for Nixon because I feel his experience as a vice-president makes him a better man for the job. During President Eisenhower's illness, Nixon had the opportunity to sit in the President's chair. Personally, I think Nixon would pick a more able Cabinet than Kennedy would and no president is any better than his Cabinet.

Mrs. Donald W. Skale, Main Street, Lawrenceville, housewife: I would probably vote for Nixon because I feel he is better qualified for the position based on his relationship with President Eisenhower and the Cabinet. I think Nixon would have more favor in the diplomatic field as evidenced by his extensive training as vice-president.

Rev. Francis Kissler, 38 Alexander Street, minister, Nixon for me. I think he has more experience for the job. Kennedy is untied so far and he is awfully young for the presidency. I like the policies that President Eisenhower has set up and I think Nixon will carry them out.

Mrs. Norman A. Webster, Scott Road, Princeton Junction, housewife: I like Kennedy but I feel that Nixon has had more experience and is the better candidate for that reason.

William A. Garrigue, 18 Springdale Road, associated with several business interests: I would vote for Nixon for several reasons: I consider our own international relations and the whole world situation to top everything else in importance and here Nixon has the advantage of unusually thorough training by President Eisenhower whom I greatly admire. Also, Nixon has handled with great skill the numerous difficult foreign missions on which he has been sent. In addition I believe Nixon favors sound economic principles and development within our country. He is intelligent, honest, hard-working and conservative. This does not mean I like his handling of the recent steel strike but I am willing to give him the benefit of the doubt that he did the best that could be done under the circumstances.

Miss Olive LaRouche, The Great Road: Mr. Nixon because he has more experience. He knows what the job is about and what it entails.

R. Braddock Dinsmore, Lawrenceville Road, insurance salesman: Nixon. I think he has more experience than Kennedy. He's had some marvelous training from President Eisenhower.

Mrs. Lucy Menefee, 15 Markham Road, secretary: Nixon because he is more capable for the job. He has been our representative to other countries and I think he has handled foreign situations very diplomatically.

Walter Baumgarten, Neshaan Station, retired lithographer: I think we've had quite good government up to now with the Republicans. The Democrats, to me, are too much on the monetary side. I'm satisfied with things the way they are so my choice would be Nixon.

IT'S ALL FOR WELLESLEY: Alumnae of Wellesley who live in the central New Jersey area have been busy for many weeks planning a show and sale of fine antiques. The show will be held at Princeton Country Day School March 23, 24 and 25. (For additional information, see "It's New To Us.") Members of the committee, shown here, are Mrs. John Gulick, left, chairman of the event; Mrs. William A. Stuart, dealer chairman and Mrs. Gertrude Thuermer, president of the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey. (Staff Photo)

this Saturday and continuing to April 2.

Mrs. Lee has lived abroad for many years, and last fall she saw her first American autumn in almost a dozen years. Her impression of Bayard Lane, framed with an arch of flaming gold trees, will surely find a place above some Princeton memento.

She was also impressed anew with the Jersey flats, of all things, and there are two "mystical"—the word is Mrs. Lee's—scenes of Newark and environs, one done at sunset, the other during a time of light mist. They are most evocative, no doubt about it.

There will be a water color of your old friend the Mercer Oak and a sketch of the same tree without its leaves, displaying the bare bones of its intricately twining branches.

One of the most dramatic, oh! is a Tornado in red against a brassy yellow which fills the entire canvas. She has done some fencers in oil, too, their stylized postures giving them the air of artists' figures.

Some of Mrs. Lee's works will be for sale, others will be for display only, like the charming autumn scene with its rambling old white house and its playful children, or the warm portrait of the child standing by his crib.

A graduate of the Maryland Institute of Art, Mrs. Lee has had one-man shows in Rome and in Baltimore. The Peale Museum in Baltimore owns one of her paintings.

If You're in a Jam, Here I Am. What the AAA is to motorists and the Diners Club to traveling gourmets, the Allied Homeowners Association is to stay-at-homes.

This organization, with headquarters at 764 Nassau (WA4-4100), will provide its subscribers with the comfort of knowing that somebody is on call 24 hours a day every day in the week to dam up a bursting water heater, or clean a lampshade. On tap service, so to speak.

A subscriber pays $10 for his first year's membership. After that, the annual dues are $5 a year. He is billed monthly by the AHA at prices quoted by the repairman before the job is done.

This means that a subscriber not only has help at his fingertips at 3 a.m., he also has the assurance that he won't be cheated by unscrupulous repairmen, or charged exorbitant fees for coming to the house at odd hours (and home emergencies ALWAYS occur at odd hours). All of the contractors and repairmen on the AHA lists have been screened for workmanship and dependability, so you know that you're getting a good and honest man when you place your call.

The list of services offered by AHA is incredibly long. Aside from the usual help offered to victims of arrogant plumbing and postrail appliances, AHA has firms that will repair musical instruments, clean Venetian blinds, repair zippers, rent a dance hall, get a vet for your cat, clean the chimney, remove bees, tear down or just move a whole house.

The service has particular appeal to families whose chief repairman and bread-winner travels a great deal. It is also a wonderful help to women who live alone. And if you've gone out for the evening, you can leave the AHA number next to your telephone so that the baby-sitter will know whom to call if fuses begin to blow.

THE FLAG IS OUT! For the first time this winter, the white flag with the red ball was unfurled at the corner of Nassau and Witherspoon, signalling the season's first "safe skating" on Lake Carnegie. Lieut. Peter J. McCrohan of the Borough Police force (above), plants a different kind of flag on the lake to mark the limits of safety. Denny Fernandez, upper left, is pretty small for those single runners, so he takes to the double runners of a sled when he gets tired. Sail skaters, or skate sailors if you prefer, line up in the icy sunshine for a brisk race down the lake (center). Young Teddy Ford prepares to apply stick to puck, but George Ford thinks it might be more fun to apply his hockey stick to Teddy (lower left).

TO EXHIBIT FOSSIL LIFE

Unearthed in University Diggings. Excavations for new buildings on the Princeton University campus have yielded material for a fossil display which will be held in the University's Museum of Natural History in Guyot Hall. The exhibition, which includes a bone from a pre-historic reptile, fossil worm borings and samples of the various types of construction stone used in the University's "53 Million for Princeton" building campaign, will be open to the public every day except Sunday from 9 to 4 through April.

A fossil bone of the reptile Clesysaurus was found by Professor Glenn L. Jepsen, Sinclair Professor of Vertebrate Paleontology and who has arranged the exhibition, only a few feet from the offices of the Department of Geology. The Clesysaurus, who reigned more than 275 million years ago, resembles its modern day neighbor, the crocodile. With its jaws lined with sharp, serrated teeth, and its nostrils located high on its snout so it could be in the water and be almost invisible to its victims, the Clesysaurus preyed on small fish and game.

Report from THE MAYOR

On The Agenda. On Tuesday, March 22, at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall, Mayor and Council will meet for the third time this month to transact important business. On the agenda will be public hearings on three matters: proposed increases in alcoholic beverage license fees, a proposed increase in the annual taxi license fee, and the final determination of property owners' assessments for sidewalk improvements on Hamilton Avenue.

Last Tuesday, the Council spent more than four hours in action on a host of Borough problems; and then reconvened on Saturday for a special one-hour session to act upon a resolution concerning sites for public housing. The resolution, presented by Councilman Coyle on behalf of the Committee on the Future of Princeton, was amended to include some additional alternatives as suggested by the commissioners of the Borough Housing Authority. After discussion which again saw Council endorsing the scattered site principle, the resolution was adopted.

A Record Month. February was a record month at the Public Library. The highest single month's circulation of books — 18,064 — was recorded. On a single day — February 23 — circulation totaled 1,145 volumes in that tiny beehive of a library.

The librarian's report also shows township registrations exceeding borough registrations by a total of forty-one. The borough-township committee working on an operating agreement reports progress in its deliberations which will precede probable referendums on joint operation for the voters' consideration in November.

Children and Youth. The White House Conference on Children and Youth is held every ten years for a nationwide stock-taking of children's needs. The Mayor is looking forward to participation in the 1960 sessions beginning March 27 in Washington.

It is a privilege to be part of the New Jersey delegation which will be exchanging views with citizens from all walks of life who share a deep concern for young people throughout the nation. In calling the 1960 conference, President Eisenhower pointed to the fact that "the rapidly changing times in which we live, and the increasingly fast pace of change, make it incumbent upon us to do everything we can to plan ahead and to see that we prepare today's children well for life in tomorrow's world."

Operation Spring. Captain Sage, our Joint Borough-Township Disaster Control Coordinator, has notified the mayors of a state-wide public participation test to be conducted on Saturday, March 26.

The sirens will be sounded and the public will be required to take shelter. The operation is designed to test the attack warning communication net, to evaluate the coverage of our sirens, to enlist full public cooperation and understanding of the signals, and to test our control center personnel.

Thursday Open House. The regular weekly "Tell it to the Mayor!" sessions will be held on Thursday, March 17, and Thursday, March 24, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

A Thought to Chew On

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS: Judging from the correspondence that has ensued in your columns regarding the fluoridation issue and the lack of any published response to Mr. Holsington's plea for the support of a sane nuclear policy, it seems quite possible that before long we will all be cadavers with beautiful teeth.

J. TAYLOR BROWN

Finds Society "Sick"

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS: I was simply appalled by the range of socially destructive answers which were rendered to your question concerning the abolition of the death penalty. (Town Topics, March 13-15.)

I do not wish to attack these people, as they answered in good faith based upon what for them were sufficient reasons. However, I find the predominant answers, these answers as indicative of just how "sick" a society can become.

Contemporary criminology has pretty well established "that the death penalty is not a successful deterrent to crime in that over centuries of executing criminals, the rate of major crime has not significantly dropped, in fact has increased. Crime is a function of social disorganization and not of the existence of or lack of existence of death penalties.

I should sincerely hate to be judged by this panel of my peers for their representation of a genuinely inhumane and unreasonable point of view. Are there really people who don't deserve to live? Who are they?

Are we to murder criminals because it costs too much to keep them in our jails? Are we improving society by taking the life of a man who has committed murder? If so, how?

Is whipping a socially beneficial device? Why?

The Eskimos have a most unique penalty for the murderer: he must take the place of the murdered man and must provide a substitute. From the standpoint of economic contribution if nothing else, isn't this a more socially beneficial viewpoint?

I hope that if any of the people who commented in your poll read this letter they either take the time to investigate some of the facts concerning contemporary criminological procedures or at least to avoid forming such dogmatic assertions. I am informed opinions concerning factor of primary significance for our society.

Should we murder an Einstein if he commits a murder? Should we murder the soldier who commits murder for his nation's glory to save space? Should we murder the mechanic who repairs our cars, and has several children at home, just because he once comes so antisocial as to commit a major social wrong?

What is the value of the death penalty? Does it make our society stronger?

Crime is a real and serious problem but it cannot be prayer nor cliché away. It must be dealt with by competent people who are willing to cast aside the dogmatism of their social teachings and to investigate what various methods of criminal treatment actually mean for the prevention and rehabilitation of criminals. The most we of the general public can do is to support serious study of these problems and to forego a new car next year for a potentially better and crimeless society next generation. If we are unable to do this, I suggest that we aren't really concerned about crime except as it directly involves our personal lives.

Perhaps like the father in Philadelphia we ought to pour scalding water on our mischievous children and heat our wives. Then, surely crime would decrease and we could all be happy.

DEE HEMMERLY

Does Capital Punishment Deter?

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

A mobster kills for survival in his life's jungle of ruthless men. An average man kills vengefully. An insane man kills, dictated by his unhinged mind.

Who, among these, reasons, "Society says it is wrong to kill; Society exacts a penalty for murder. If I commit a murder, I may be condemned to die?"

Through the ages, crime has continued despite penalties. Various governments have tried brutal, painful, extreme punishments. Offending hands cut off, offending eyes gouged out, and offending lives ended. Is our present penal system relatively harsh? No, we have become more rational, more civilized in our approach. We no longer cut off offending parts.

These and other cruel punishments have been accorded as humane relics of man's brutal vengeance on offenders. Such vengeance did not right the wrongs, or inhibit future offenders. It only soured righteous men's anger against criminal perpetrators.

Does society kill to punish? Does it seek revenge on the criminal? Does it wish to deter further crimes? Does it wish to rid itself of human financial and security problems?

It cannot be morally right to kill in vengeance or to kill to rid the state of a human burden. Capital punishment's only justification lies in its ability to deter future crimes. Thinking as a potential murderer, do you really believe the state's highest penalty would deter you?

Legal Lotteries Favored.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

I am so pleased that you quoted me about supporting a national or state lottery. Let me embroider a bit on my statement and tell why I think a lottery should be legalized.

First of all, no one can be kept from gambling; everybody gambles in some way or another. Those who profit from unregulated gambling in this country are first of all the big gamblers. It is a racket like that of the owners of "speakeasies" during prohibition, times selling unlegal liquor. But the really absurd thing is that the Government collects taxes from these gamblers and as a rule can only convict anyone of them on income tax evasion, no matter what hideous crimes are known to have been committed.

Switzerland, the most civilized country anywhere, allows lottery tickets to be sold in stores, post offices and hotels. They are given away as premiums with news in "drawing" lottery tickets for sale. Who doesn't buy a theater ticket for more than $5 one or two times a year? Instead of allowing millions of dollars to go out of this country when we need the money for our own charities, education and taxcuts, it seems very short-sighted, to me! pious and stupid to waste capital on legalized betting.

If anyone wins an Irish Sweepstakes ticket our government quickly ready to take a big slice from the amount for taxes and does not punish the winner by confiscating the whole amount or punish the offender for having bought a ticket from a bookie or some other illegal source. All that I can say is, that the entire system is deceitful and unworthy of this wonderful country. It is often too free in some more immoral practices, which ought to be restrained by law.

Who are the forces against legalized gambling? First of all the gamblers or some private enterprise. Foreign citizens who like to see their countries helped and at the same time have a chance of winning a fortune. Well meaning religious groups all over this country, who consider gambling very wicked, but they will take chances and buy a "White Elephant" at a church fair, carefully wrapped up in a beautiful package, hoping for something interesting, but at the same time wanting to help their church or community.

I hope that Representative Paul A. Fino, a Republican of New York, will be supported in his effort to establish a national lottery. (We need a state lottery.) He estimates that $100,000,000 could be added to the U. S. Treasury yearly. Isn't this sum worth taking care of and he used sensibly and constructively?

Fluoridation Opposed.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

For those individuals who are too intelligent to fall for the one-to-one propaganda put out by the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association and would like to see both sides of the picture and make their own evaluation of the fluoridation issue on the basis of scientific fact now available, I would suggest a trip to the library and a close look at all the information against Fluoridation.

Journal of the American Water Works for April 1968 on "Toxicological Methods for Estimating Drinking Water Standards" in which we find that arsenic has a safety factor of 10 while Fluorine is so dangerous that it has a safety factor of zero as set by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Dental Digest, February 1968, James G. Kervin, D.D.S. discusses the startling and awesome theory that a combination of Strontium 90 and Fluorine in the body results in the formation of the compound strontium fluoride. Together these two elements become even less soluble than they are separately.

Fluoridation Favored.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

I am unable to understand why an "intelligent" community such as Princeton has not long since done something about fluoridation.

The scientific evidence seems overwhelmingly favorable, and people whose judgment we ought to trust such as the Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service have assured us that it is completely safe.

Other communities have been giving their children the benefit of fluoridated water for more than a decade. Studies in these communities reveal that the children who drink fluoridated water from birth have fifty to sixty percent fewer cavities than children who do not drink fluoridated water. This indicates that children who enjoy the benefits of fluoridated water until adulthood will have stronger, better teeth, and their teeth will be less prone to decay.

The cost of fluoridation is so small that it is hardly worth mentioning—less than TEN CENTS per person per YEAR. This is a very small investment when we think of the savings in dental bills—to say nothing of freedom from toothaches.

Since fluoridation has been proved to be beneficial to children in some communities for the past decade, should not the children of Princeton have the opportunity to receive these benefits too?

Wants Freedom of Choice.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

Fluoridation of water supplies was instituted by those who, charged with improving health conditions, believed that fluorides could be a deterrent to dental caries. The goal of this program is commendable; objection is raised against the method—addition to water of a substance which, prior to the mid 1940's when it was first added artificially, had been subjected to little experimental analysis as regards human consumption, (1) and whose "benefits" have been stated to outweigh its "harmfulness." (2).

—In accord with fluoridation advocates who say we should bow to the opinion of those in authority, I believe, for just that reason, that we should heed the physicians, dentists and health officials whose appraisals are less than enthusiastic. (3).

American and European researchers are studying phosphates as possible caries inhibitors, and the addition of fluorides to tablets, salt, dentifrices and milk. We are cautioned, however, that fluorides in two different forms should not be used in combination lest the double dosage be too high. (4).

If the only fluoride vehicle were milk, for instance, children and adults would have a choice of consumption, as they should have in a democracy and in a free market (presumably milk would be available with or without fluorides). When public drinking water is the vehicle consumers lose that freedom of choice.

Last year Canton, Ohio, and Concord, New Hampshire abandoned their fluoridation programs after several years' duration; and in the past few years over 1000 American communities have rejected fluoridation of their water supplies. (5) This trend away from fluoridation was admitted by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C., in the New York Times of February 10, 1959.

An appeal is made to policymakers and voters of Princeton to take a careful look at the record of the fluoridation experiment—the use of public drinking water as a means to harden tooth enamel with only "minimal" mottling of teeth—and to reserve judgment until all aspects have been ascertained.

"Welfare State" Coming?

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

During the past month, there have been several letters and reports printed in your paper concerning the advantages and disadvantages of fluoridating the water supplied to users by the Princeton Water Company. It seems to me that many of the authors of these letters have not analyzed the problem very carefully.

There are essentially three parts: (1) The biochemical evidence shows that children aged 1 to 5 benefit markedly when supplied with water containing 1 part per million of fluoride. However, the data collected in Sarnia, Ontario, shows that only about 50 percent of the children fed the concentration of fluoride had fewer dental caries than those found in the teeth of the control group of children. Thus, if Princeton's water is treated we should not expect miracles to happen. Most of the children will have to have dental attention.

(2) The economic aspects should be considered since installation of the equipment will cost about $35,000, and the life of this equipment is usually five to eight years. Should this cost be borne by the Princeton Water Company?

Should it be paid for by the Borough? Or should it be paid for by the water users?

We are lucky that there are no industrial users of the water, but even without this disadvantage it is likely that as little as one percent of the treated water will be absorbed by the children who may benefit from it. Is this too expensive?

It may cost as much as $50 per child, ($35,000 divided by the 700 children in the 1 to 5 age group). The alternative is to ask the dairy to fluoridate the milk supply, or to distribute sodium fluoride tablets to the households where these children reside.

(3) The legal aspects are a bit confused: We chlorinate the water to kill the germs which trans-

"Flying Ants" are a sign termites may be attacking your home. Call today for a free inspection by a University Graduate Entomologist to determine if any damage is being done and if protective treatment is necessary. We use wood pressure treating methods which protect damaged wood from any further dry-rot or fungus. Our methods are based on sound engineering and wood preserving principles and for that reason treatments given by us are capable of giving more permanent protection. The work is thorough, effective and guaranteed for five years. Our charge for complete protection is no more than some others charge for partial treatments. Please call collect if out-of-town. Estimates are cheerfully given.

Get Set to Take Cover
Everybody will be required to take cover for 15 minutes in a civil defense exercise to be held Saturday, March 26, it was announced this week by Thomas S. Dennen of Princeton, acting state director of civil defense. He said that willful violators will be subject to arrest.
The "take cover" signal, a warring, three-minute blast, will sound at 10:30 A. M. All traffic will cease and everybody is to seek shelter immediately. The test will be over and normal activity will resume at 10:45 a.m., when an "all-clear," a steady three-minute blast, will sound.
One hour before the "take cover" there will be an "alert" signal, also a steady three-minute blast. Special announcements regarding the civil defense exercise will be made over commercial radio stations after this signal is sounded at 9:30 a.m.

mit diseases such as typhoid and cholera. These are public hazards. Dental caries are private matters, and until we have a welfare state where all dentists are on the public payroll, the dental problems are only the concern of the person whose teeth are affected.
The question is whether we should add fluoride to the water so that a few of our population can benefit; it is evident that most of us won't be harmed by the added fluoride, though the medicated water may not be as suitable as formerly for the preparation of home-brewed wines, beer and other alcoholic beverages. Some may want the Borough to use the money for other purposes, or to consider special request by other minority groups. This is the question before the Borough Council. If we start with this diversion of public funds, where will we stop? While I personally am looking forward to the "Welfare State," perhaps others in Princeton are not so progressive.

W. E. CENTER FEATURED

In Annual Report. Current work at the new Western Electric Engineering Research Center in Hopewell Township is among technological developments cited in the company's annual report. Also included is an architect's sketch of the two buildings now under construction on the Hopewell Township site. Many of the W. E. engineers who will be located in the new buildings are now working at temporary quarters in Princeton Shopping Center.

General purpose of the Research Center, according to the annual report, is to search for and establish new production techniques and processes. The work is being done in collaboration with Bell Laboratories engineers.

Research is now being conducted in these three areas: Mechanization studies, looking toward automatic methods of micro-manufacture of devices such as transistors; process studies, investigating new materials and the ways in which they might be affected by various processes, such as irradiation; and systems studies, particularly the development of ways of using computers and data processing systems in manufacturing.

MUSIC In Princeton

BIKEL CHARM'S AUDIENCE

In McCarter Sunday. A brawny heavy-set man in conservative grey business suit, stopped before a capacity audience and, armed with a guitar and a sense of humor, won the hearts of hundreds of Princetoniens. The man was Theodore Bikel; the occasion, his concert in McCarter Theater on Sunday afternoon, sponsored by Celebrity Series.

Although billed for this appearance strictly as a folk singer, Mr. Bikel seems to be a veritable "jack of all trades", being, a successful stage, film and television actor, a radio performer, and a leading man in musical comedy — his current claim to fame. In addition, one must not overlook his linguistic gifts and three other talents which were exhibited during his performance on Sunday — guitar playing, harmonic playing and whistling.

Of all his gifts, however, there is one which encompasses and enhances all the rest: stage personality. He holds a group of listeners in his hands; he seems to know and love human nature through his many and varied past experiences, and is able to evoke the most ardent audience response through his instinctive sensitivity to the type of group at hand.

Judging from his program and his remarks, Mr. Bikel's specialty seems to be Jewish folk music — and this befits his Israeli background and his great affection for all aspects of the Hebrew tradition. As a result, one might have wished for a little more variety in the songs presented; there were, perhaps, too few songs sung in English for the taste of some. However, Mr. Bikel is surely to be admired for his seeming mastery of many languages, as shown in the occasional French, Russian, Spanish, Greek and Arabian songs.

After the intermission, Mr. Bikel introduced Ray Bogaslov, who shared the limelight with him for the remainder of the concert. A rather unusual and perhaps unnecessary feature, it seemed, especially as Mr. Bikel seemed to be holding his own quite nicely up to that point. Mr. Bogaslov impressed one as being of the hip-swinging school of folk singers, but he is a competent guitarist, and he and his partner combined in some enjoyable duos, both in English and in foreign languages.

As for Mr. Bikel, it would certainly be several hours well-spent to hear him tell the story of his life. Sunday's performance gave just an inkling of a rich and varied store of experiences, as well as a generous sample of a warm and fascinating personality.

SEGOVIA IN CONCERT: The renowned Spanish guitarist will play in McCarter Theatre Monday night.

In the Purcell work, a chamber orchestra of strings and harp-orchard will provide the accompaniment. Its members are Annetta Rosser, Edith Colton, Victoria Felts, Jean Underwood, Lewis Lockwood and Leo Treitel, all of Princeton; Joseph Kovacs, Kingston; Alan Warner, New Brunswick; and Everett Shaw, Pennington.

SEGOVIA WILL PLAY

In Final Series II Concert. Andres Segovia, classic guitarist who last year celebrated the 50th anniversary of his first public appearance, will play Monday in McCarter Theater in the final concert of Series II of the Princeton University Concerts. His performance is scheduled for 8:30. Senior Segovia's enthusiasm for the guitar goes back to his boyhood. He first heard the guitar when he was ten years old and he determined at that early age to devote his studies to the instrument. But the guitar had been forgotten as a concert instrument since the 18th century, and Senior Segovia had to be musicologist, teacher and student all at once in order to learn the instrument's polyphonic techniques and to revive its literature.

The artist has not only brought back to the concert repertoire the Renaissance and early Baroque music written for guitar, he has enriched the instrument's literature by making transcriptions and by giving commissions to composers. Many of his transcriptions are from lute music. Thirteen eminent composers have written especially for him.

For his Princeton concert, he has chosen music which covers a span of four centuries. He will play the music of Sanz, the 17th century Spanish guitarist, de Visee, Johann Sebastian Bach, Joseph Haydn, Mendelssohn and Sor. The last named is one of Spain's most famous composers for the guitar. In addition, he will play music by Tansman, Tarrega, Albeniz and Castelnuovo-Tedesco.

THEY'LL SING TOGETHER

Smith and Princeton. The Smith College Choir and the Princeton University Glee Club will present a joint concert this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in McCarter Theater. Janice Harsanyi, Princeton soprano, will be soloist.

Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" — one of the finest English operas, will be heard in the first half of the program. Mrs. Harsanyi will sing the role of Dido. She will be heard again as "Helen" in a group of selections from "La Belle Helene," an opera in which Jacques Offenbach satirizes the Trojan War.

Members of the Smith Choir will present the first Princeton performance of selections from "The Precepts of Angelus Silex," by the American composer, Ernst Bacon and the Smith-Princeton Madrigal Singers will sing a group of madrigals.

MUSIC CLUB TO MEET

For March Program. Members of the Princeton Music Club will gather next Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. A. N. Spaul, 314 Stockton Street, for program of music presented by members.

Miss Frances Crawford, Mrs. Joseph Nichols, Mrs. Eugene Paey, Mrs. Teschner Tas and Miss Rosemary Russell will perform. Hostesses will be Mrs. Thomas Huntington, Mrs. Mathilde McKinney and Mrs. Lester Plum.

ART AT HOME

Nan Lee, local artist, will show how original art can be "at home" anywhere in your house. Our third show of talented Princetoniens again correlates fabrics and carpets with the colors of individual paintings. Views of Rome and Paris show the influence of Miss Lee's eleven years abroad, while the familiar landmarks of the Mercer oak and Stockton Street reflect the impact of local scenes.

Designed to show that good taste and individuality need not be expensive, the exhibition will run from Saturday, March 19, through April 2.

TWO TIGERS NAMED
To All-Ivy Basketball Team, Captain Jim Brangan and sophomore Pete Campbell were unanimous selections on the All-Ivy Basketball Team chosen by the coaches of the eight colleges. Brangan was named for the second year in a row, while Campbell (along with Brown's Mike Ciglier) was the first sophomore to make it since Carl Belz was chosen in his first year — 1955.

Rounding out the quintet are George Farley, Cornell's 6-7 center whose 47 points against Princeton set an Ivy League record, and Penn's Bob Mikky. Mikky, the Quakers' captain-elect, chased Campbell throughout the season for individual scoring honors, finishing with 275 points and a 19.8 average. Campbell threw in 322, averaging 23 points a game, and was the first sophomore to top 300 in an Ivy season.

As might be expected, the Dartmouth Indians' disappointing performance in failing to repeat as champions after being so heavily favored cost them representation among the top five. Captain Chuck Kaufman, a first-team choice last year as a junior, dropped off to the second quintet.

Placing with him were teammate Gary Vandeweghe; Gary Borchard, Harvard's standout sophomore, and two Columbia players, Ed Auzenberg and Dick Rodin. As if it to add weight to the belief here that he is the most underrated player in the league, Princeton's Dan Swan did not earn a single point in the balloting, despite the fact that he averaged 13 points and a dozen rebounds per game. Swan, who this week was named captain to succeed Brangan, figures to play a major part in Princeton's campaign to repeat as league champions next season.

A Look Ahead. In that 1961 campaign, the Tigers will be confronted with much the same problem that Dartmouth failed to solve this year. The Indians lost Rudy Larusso, the standout player who provided the ability and the cohesion that brought them the title in 1959. Princeton will lose only Jim Brangan from its present championship quintet.

"Only," of course, is a word used to indicate that Brangan (who this week won the Bunn Trophy for outstanding play and sportsmanship) is the lone senior on the team. Good enough to break into professional basketball. If he chooses, the Tiger captain was largely responsible for leading a group of wholly inexperienced players from last first place during the season. In the basic sense of the word, he is irreplaceable.

FOUR-RING CIRCUS: Four mats were used simultaneously in the early rounds of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Tournament, staged last weekend in Dillon Gymnasium, Pittsburgh and Penn State tied for the title as the latter's heavyweight pinned his opponent from Brown in the last event of the two-day affair. Princeton scored only four points, placing 14th in the 16-team field. (Town Topics Photo by Richards.)

If Campbell, Swan, Mike Burton and Tom Adams, the other four players who started the climactic games, are all available next year, who will be the fifth player? It might be 6-4 Al Kaemmerlen, whose improvement was visible from game to game before he went on academic probation in mid-February.

It might be Art Hyland, who broke Campbell's freshman scoring record this winter, although his per-game average was not as high. It could be Andy Higgins, a junior who played well in a reserve capacity as the Tigers were roaring down the stretch to win their last seven league games. But whoever becomes the fifth man, the Tigers' big problem will be gaining increased ability from all five members of the 1961 team. No one player can fill Brangan's shoes.

RECORDS BROKEN

By Princeton Swimmers. Although they failed to place higher than third in any event, Princeton entries in the eastern intercollegiate swimming championships at Cambridge last weekend made their best showing in the past five years. Two third and three fourth places came their way as a pair of Princeton records were broken.

George Brakeley again lowered his time for the 440-yard freestyle with a 4:14.6 clocking. Despite the fact that he cut four seconds off his best previous university mark, six other entries finished ahead of him.

Tom Welch, who set a Princeton backstroke record as a freshman, was clocked at 2:12 for the 200-yard event, lowering his mark by four-fifths of a second. He finished third at Harvard.

In the fencing intercollegiate at New York, Coach Stan Seja's entry won the eastern epic championship for the first time in 20 years. Junior Frank Anger, the individual winner with this weapon, will be a member of the United States Olympic team this summer.

VAN GERBIG ELECTED

To Head Hockey Team. The varsity goalie for the past two seasons, Barry Van Gerbig, will captain the 1960-61 hockey team. He succeeds John McBride, who shared the Blackwell Cup for outstanding play and sportsmanship with defenseman Tom Campbell.

McBride this week was named unanimously to the All-Ivy team, which was dominated by three Dartmouth players. Van Gerbig was a repeat as second team goalie.

The Freshman Hockey Prize was shared by two Princeton area residents, Johnny Cook of Kingston and Austin Sullivan of

CAPPY CAPPON
Basketball Coach

When the last-second basket by Dartmouth's Rudy Lufusso defeated Princeton's basketball team in the Ivy League playoff last March, Tiger fans wondered when their team would again be likely to win the title. The first year after the Bela brothers, Jay Burns and Artie Klein graduated would be a building year, they reasoned—and on top of that, Dartmouth had four of the five starters from the 1959 champions on hand again. Maybe by 1961, or '62?

Brown, lightly touched by graduation and blessed with a couple of topflight sophomores, was generally picked as the team to give the Indians the best run for their money. After that, a veteran Cornell team had a good mixture of rebounding and scoring ability. Penn and Princeton were conceded a shot at the remaining first division berth.

There's no way of telling what the odds were against a Princeton title this year. On the night of February 12, with the season nearing the halfway mark, Dartmouth was still unbeaten in six games, the Tigers were well off the pace at 4 and 2.

A scant three weeks later, after their record had dropped to 4-3 with a defeat by Cornell at Ithaca, Cappy Cappon's team had ripped off seven straight victories, including a rarely-achieved triumph over Dartmouth at Hanover. However, as last year's Tiger quintet had had to go into a playoff in order to get a shot at the title at all, the 1960 entry won a regulation time.

Capon built his team this year around two stand-out players and a combination of five or six others whose potential he developed in the style of a true master. Don Swan, who saw action last year for just 60 minutes out of a possible 965, started every game this season and proved to be not only extremely dependable but a great "clutch" player. In the brief weeks he was on the court, the sophomore Al Kamenmerlin improved so rapidly that his contributions had much to do with a five-game winning streak. In the victory at Hanover, vital points were credited to Kamenmerlin, who last year had played nothing but Jayvee basketball. In the past 11 years, Cappon Princeton teams have finished the regular season in first place on six occasions—a record no other entry in the circuit can come close to matching. During that time, for example, Dartmouth has been first three times, Penn and Columbia each twice, Cornell once. The others—Brown, Harvard, Yale—have not been on top at all.

More often than not, those first-place finishes have been achieved after Princeton was considered unlikely to earn a berth among the top three. In the years to come, that will undoubtedly be the penalty that Cappy will pay for this incredible ability of his to bring the Tigers home in first place. "If Princeton wins," you can hear them say, "it won't be an upset."

Widdowd will meet for the Group I High School championship.

ST. PAUL'S SEEKS UPSET
to Bishop's Tournament. St. Paul's will meet Sacred Heart, champions of the Tri-County League, Saturday at 4:45 at Junior 2 School Gymnasium in Trenton in the Bishop's Invitational Tournament. Tuesday night, St. Paul's will tangle with St. Hedwig's at 6 in Trenton and with Sacred Heart the following night. St. Paul's, currently 6-2, has only one letterman back from last year's team and Coach Marty Lombardo hopes these games will give the Cavaliers needed experience. Probable starters for Saturday's contest include Joseph Lurhman, Kerry Klink, William Barclay, Ronald Hoffman and Al Proccacini.

In School Basketball, Three championship rounds in school basketball will be played this weekend in Butler Gymnasium. Friday night at 8, the Parochial Group B final will be staged between St. Mary's of Elizabeth and St. Joseph's of Camden. CONTRACTS DUE SATURDAY

For YMCA Basketball League. The final deadline for YMCA Midport basketball contracts is Saturday. Commissioners B. E. Bergesen, Jr., announced. The next steps for the organization of the 1960 season will be to place boys on teams and, finally, to start practice in early April.

Commissioner Bergesen also named the managers for the 1960 season. These include Rick Matthews, Indians; Al Hawkins, Adhesives; Robert Schmitt, Orioles; Harland Livingston, Jr., Red Sox; John Donaldson, Tigers; Charles Mueller, Yankees; Ed Popolansky, Pirates; William Barclay, Giants; Nick Bartolino, Braves; Gil Turner, Redjags; and Mike Vickers, Dodgers. The manager of the Cardinals has yet to be announced.

Over 130 boys and their fathers turned out for Saturday's meeting at the YMCA when two important announcements were made regarding League policy. The first is that boys must have reached their tenth birthday by June 30 in order to participate in the organized League this season. Nine-year-old boys will be enrolled in a Pre-League training program directed by Richard Holsington.

The second announcement was that all 12 teams in the League would be fully uniformed, a de-

News Of The CHURCHES

NEW PASTOR CALLED

By Kingston Presbyterian, Clarence K. Briley, a student at Princeton Theological Seminary, has been called to the pastorate of Kingston Presbyterian Church. He was unanimously elected at a meeting of the congregation last Sunday.

Mr. Briley, who will be graduated from the seminary in June, will take over his new post following his ordination. While the Kingston church will be his first regular charge, he has been serving as student pastor for two years of the First Amwell Presbyterian Church in Reaville, N.J.

Mr. Briley, who succeeds the Rev. Henry W. Heaps, was born in Oklahoma and received his B. Div. from Friends University, Wichita, Kansas. In addition to his work as a student pastor, he has had experience as a teacher and leader of young people.

His wife, Mrs. Jeanne Briley, is also a graduate of Friends University. She has taught art in city public schools of Hightstown for the past three years and is also a capable pianist.

IT'S PURIM TIME! The gay holiday commemorating Queen Esther's victory over a wicked king was celebrated Sunday with costumes and games by young members of the Jewish Center congregation. Left to right: Eric Latschewer, a cowboy who has somehow strayed into Biblical history; Diane Seideman, seductive in jewels and veil; Susan Reshwal, who prefers civilian garb; and her sister, Ann, who is probably Queen Esther herself.
